rotating solar panel). Through this automation, the performance of the solar panel has really increased. This automation of the solar panel is realized through both a closed loop feedback control system and open loop system (Mruzek, 2015). The most effectively tracking control system is that for the closed-loop control system.

As less light is reflected in this way, the panels trap a greater amount of solar energy. The narrower the angle of incidence will be, the higher the energy a solar PV panel can generate. The most popular application of a solar tracker is positioning solar photovoltaic panels perpendicular to the Sun.

Some homeowners in the UK want to embrace the benefits of solar technology but can't (or don't want to) install solar panels on their roofs. Even for those that are intending to install solar panels on the roof, doing so means the panels are static, i.e. only able to generate energy at certain times of the day when the sun is in the right position in the sky.
