Is Igneo acquiring ENSO Energy Environment & Sustainability (ENSO)?

Igneo Infrastructure Partners, a division of Australian asset manager First Sentier Investors (FSI), is seeking to acquire Spanish biomass energy firm Enso Energy Environment and Sustainability (Enso), sources familiar with the matter confirmed after a formal announcement of the acquisition was sent to the competition watchdog in Portugal.

Who owns ENSO energy?

Enso is owned by T2 Energy Transition Fund, a private equity fund launched by Tikehau Capital SCA (EPA:TKO) in partnership with TotalEnergies SE (EPA:TTE). Through Magestop, the company manages operation and maintenance of two 15-MW biomass power plants in Fundao and Viseu in Portugal.

Who owns ENSO & Igneo?

Enso develops and operates biomass-based power and thermal plants and is active in Portugal through its subsidiary Magestop. Igneo owns wind and solar farm operator Finerge SA, which calls itself Portugal's second-largest renewable energy producer. Igneo via an affiliate notified Portuguese competition authority AdC of its intent to acquire Enso.

Project Overview. Bramley solar farm will provide renewable electricity for distribution to the Bramley National Grid Substation. This project would generate energy each year of the proposed 40 years of operational life, while also providing a substantial carbon dioxide savings when compared to generation of electricity by non-renewable sources.

120 megawatt (MW) Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) on land south of Goldborough Road, Hundleton, Pembroke, designed to reinforce the National Grid by providing instantaneous energy balancing services. This is achieved by storing energy produced when demand is low or there is an over-supply, which can be distributed when demand increases.
