A solar generator is a portable generator that usually works along with solar panels. It typically acts as an automatic backup battery to power your home and your household appliances and/or electronic devices when you run out of electricity due to power outages.

A generator works effectively in situations where power is irredeemably low while an inverter draws and stores power from a source for use over time. Your best bet would be owning both. An inverter and a generator would compliment the other while providing you with uninterrupted power to last as long as you desire.
