Two are needed to mount the solar panel. 4 is a spacer between the wall and the aluminium mount. The weight of the panel rests on the telescopic rod. In B, the aluminium strip rests on the window sill to lower the load on the rod. The problem is that the angle of the window sill is not standardized. 5° are recommended, but much more can be common.

Solar power, also known as solar electricity, is the conversion of energy from sunlight into electricity, either directly using photovoltaics (PV) or indirectly using concentrated solar power. Solar panels use the photovoltaic effect to convert light into an electric current. [2] Concentrated solar power systems use lenses or mirrors and solar tracking systems to focus a large area of ...
